Put yourself in the middle circle. Then create a spider diagram of all the people in your life that you might be able to turn to for help or advice, or just to talk to if you had a problem, or were feeling ‘down’. You could add in external sources of help, too, such as the Samaritans helpline or email service.